UK Outlook for Wednesday 15 Sep 2021 to Friday 24 Sep 2021:

It will probably be turning warmer but more unsettled again during the middle of next week with a chance of showers for most areas, these potentially heavy and thundery in places, especially across central and southern parts. Towards the end of next week and thereafter, there is an increased chance of Atlantic systems arriving from the northwest. This will see spells of rain move across the country followed by brighter but showery periods. Some windy spells are also possible at times. It will likely be wettest in the northwest with the best of any drier weather in the southeast. Temperatures will be fluctuating around average for most, with a chance of some warm spells in the south.
